Congress Quits At Noon As Senate Storm Rages

REED'S RESOLUTION TIES LEGISLATION AS SOLONS RAIL AT THE FILIBUSTER

Administration Measures Fail of Passage But House Enjoys Closing Hours of The Session

WASHINGTON, March 4.—(AP)—Another session of congress passed into history today to the accompaniment of a senate storm that swept away some of the best laid plans of party leaders.

Blocked by a filibuster, the Reed resolution to continue the senate campaign funds committee virtually had paralyzed the senate for three days and as the adjournment hour of noon approached, almost frantic efforts to put the proposal aside long enough for passage of the deficiency bill and other pressing measures, followed one another in rapid succession.

As one after another failed, senators worked themselves into a mood that betrayed itself in angry gatherings on the floor. Several times Vice President Dawes called upon the sergeant-at-arms to restore order. The battling factions did relax their lines momentarily, however, to permit action on several minor uncontested measures.

The credentials of Senators-Elect Smith of Illinois and Vane of Pennsylvania were received and placed on file.

Chief among the administration bills to fail of passage was the $93,000,000 deficiency measure, carrying important money allotments for the army, for veterans loans, seed loans to farmers and for pension increases. Also consigned to the waste basket were the alien property bill, the postal rate revision bill, and the $19,000,000 appropriation to pay for the first year's work on the new public building program.

But the failure of these projects was not without its saving feature for administration senators. The favorites dragged down to defeat with them, the proposal which had tied senate procedure in a knot in the closing hours of the session—the resolution of Reed of Missouri, to extend the life of his campaign fund investigation.

During the last tense moments Senator Walsh, democrat, Mass., held the floor amid shouted protests attacking those who had killed the Reed resolution.

Then, just before he banded his gavel down to end the session, Vice-President Dawes bitterly assailed the filibuster and declared that "this is the only parliamentary body in the world in which a minority can hold up the will of the majority."

The picture in the house was quite different. Having completed their legislative program long ago, the leaders let the session lag, waiting for noon, listening to farewell speeches and amusing themselves over the furore in the sister body.

As customary, President Coolidge went to his room, adjoining the senate chamber shortly before the close of the session, and affixed his signature to many bills that had come to him at the last minute. He also received committees of senate and house who inquired whether he had any further communications to make to congress and he replied that he had not.

Adjournment also sounded the death knell of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill, whose advocates had stood by during the filibuster, awaiting an opportunity to try to override the president's veto.

Woman Killed In Bedroom of Home

BOONVILLE, Miss., Mar. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. N. R. Clayton, 25, was shot to death in her bedroom at the Clayton home, five miles from here, early today. Her husband, whom summoned officers, said he was awakened by a shot and found his wife dying from a wound in the head.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that the woman died at the hands of unknown persons. Clayton, who is 28 years old, was not arrested. A pistol, found on the bedroom floor, belonged to Clayton and was identified by him, officers reported.

HUNTER INSPIRES KIWANIS HEARERS IN CULLMAN MEET

Address On Service Delivered Before Joint Members

THIRTY MAKE CULLMAN TRIP

The First Inter-Club Gathering Is Successful

Rev. James D. Hunter inspired the membership of Cullman and Decatur Kiwanis clubs Thursday night in the first Inter-Club meeting of the year held at Cullman. Rev. Hunter used the subject "The Supreme Aristocracy," in the principal address of the evening.

With Dr. G. W. Bledsoe, president of the Cullman club, presiding the membership of the two clubs gathered at Smith's restaurant for dinner. Thirty Decatur Kiwanians were included in the hospitality of the Cullman hosts.

Dr. Bledsoe introduced J. M. Nixon, new superintendent of the I. O. O. F. home at Cullman, desiring to acquaint the visiting delegation with the work being done by the lodge in Cullman areas.

R. P. Johnson assured Decatur guests of their ever present welcome in a few words. T. M. Dix, ranking officer of the local club, responded to the pleasant welcome talk.

"The District School," a playlet depicting Kiwanis activities, was presented with the following Cullman Kiwanians taking part: Prof. Dowling and Messrs. Mitchell, Waller, McAdory, Kennemer and Whitton.

Reverend Hunter was introduced to the joint audience and in his own delightful manner, launched into his subject of "The Supreme Aristocracy." The speaker pointed out the four aristocracies, the aristocracy of wealth, of blood, of learning and of service, concluding that the latter aristocracy was the most desired in the realm of man and of God. He spoke of such an aristocracy as existing in the ranks of Kiwanis.

Returning today, Kiwanians expressed themselves as delightfully pleased with the reception at Cullman, that club always having gone out of its way to provide enjoyable occasions for the Decatur unit.

INTEREST ROUSED OVER SHOALS BID

Ford Again Comes To Fore With Suggestion

Much interest was displayed in Decatur business circles today over the published interview of J. W. Worthington, Washington agent of the Tennessee River Improvement Association, in which Mr. Worthington suggested that Henry Ford, Detroit manufacturer, is still interested in the disposal of Shoals properties.

It is remembered locally that the Detroit manufacturer had dreams of a city of 1,000,000 inhabitants and a city of 70 miles in length along the shores of the Tennessee river.

According to the statement today from Mr. Worthington, appearing in the Birmingham Age-Herald, Henry Ford is again interested in the project and has invited Mr. Worthington to Dearborn for consultation. Mr. Worthington intends to report at that point at the earliest possible moment, taking maps and data concerning the subject.

Support of the American Cyanamid bid and of the government operations plan by Alabama Congressmen would be dropped, it is indicated, if Mr. Ford returned to the field of bidders.

MARKET IN READINESS FOR INITIAL OPENING ON MOULTON STREET

With Fair Weather Predicted Hopes For Auspicious Opening Abounds Among County Farm Leaders

Decatur's curb market is ready for opening on east Moulton street in the morning at 6 o'clock. The market will continue until 12 o'clock.

With predictions of fair weather Morgan county farm heads are looking joyously forward to a good crowd of county growers to sell their first of the season goods over the local curb. Housewives of Decatur have promised to attend in numbers on the opening day.

While little more than a dozen producers have purchased permits for the opening day, it is indicated that permits as many again will be on hand for the first day selling, many desiring to wait until the day dawns before making the trip to Decatur.

Work through the week has brought a completed building to house the market. The building has been erected under the supervision of Charles T. Rountree, local civic worker who is intensely interested in the development of county agriculture and in bettering the condition of local farmers, financially.

Above Other Marts Decatur has taken additional steps in preparing for the coming of Morgan county producers, in that suitable quarters have been

'SPLIT VERDICT' IN CONSPIRACY TRIAL FOUND BY JURORS

Miller Convicted But Disagree On Guilt Of Daugherty

DEADLOCK IS FINALLY ENDED

Conspiracy Charges Are Upheld Against Ex-Custodian

NEW YORK, Mar. 4.—(AP)—

The jury in the Daugherty-Miller trial today found former Alien Property Custodian Thomas W. Miller guilty of conspiracy, but disagreed on a verdict for former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty.

Daugherty and Miller were charged with conspiracy to defraud the United States of their honest and unbiased services in allowing claims for $7,000,000 proceeds of the sale of impounded American Metal company shares.

The jury was out 70 hours.

The maximum sentence in Miller's case is two years imprisonment and $10,000 fine. His counsel said an appeal would be taken. United States Attorney Buckner, after the verdict on Miller, and the disagreement on Daugherty, asked Judge Knox to not press the indictment against Daugherty. This was done and Daugherty left the court room on the arm of his brother, Mal.

Bail for Miller was continued, pending an appeal. Date of sentence will be arranged by counsel and Judge Knox.

In a conference after the court was cleared it was agreed that motions for a new trial for Miller would be made next Tuesday.

CARNIVAL LICENSE OUT OF SCHEDULE

High Figure Might Not Be High Enough, Barred Now

The quotation of $1,000 as a price for a license to exhibit a street carnival in Decatur for one week's time, which was considered a prohibitive figure when placed in the schedule, has been withdrawn entirely.

At the meeting of the council last night, the representative of a carnival company appeared with the query whether or not the figure could or would be reduced by the council. Answered in the negative, he inquired what the attitude of the board would be, should he pay the $1,000 quoted in the license schedule as the charge for a week's exhibition here.

Aldermen, sensing the possibility that this carnival or some other finally might take the chance and pay the heretofore regarded as prohibitive amount, the council removed the charge entirely, thereby providing no means for issuing carnival licenses at any price.

TWO LOSE LIVES IN SIGHT OF LAND

Schooner 'Breaks Up' As Breeches Bouy Attempts Rescue

ORLEANS, Mass., Mar. 4.—(AP)—Breaking up of the Nova Scotia schooner Montclair today just as a breeches bouy was lowering her crew to the shore cost the lives of two men and threw three others into a precarious situation, with bundles of laths their only support.

Two men were brought ashore in the breeches bouy.

The schooner drove onto a bar, 100 yards off-shore. The coast guardsmen shot a line aboard. Two men stepped in the bouy and slid toward safety. Then the three masts toppled and the Montclair broke up rapidly. One man was ducked but was hauled out safe. Two men were lost in the breaking up.

Some of the deck cargo of laths had been tied together and the three others of the crew clung to this fragile raft. They were swept rapidly along the shore, with coast guardsmen following and waiting for an opportunity to reach them.

Reaves Named To Conduct Campaign

Sidney J. Reaves, mayor of Anniston, has been appointed to conduct the campaign for ratification of the $25,000,000 good road bond issue. In turn, he has named R. E. Spraggins, of Huntsville, as chairman of the ratification campaign in North Alabama. Atticus Mullins has accepted a place as secretary of the campaign.

The parents of the deceased reside at 1412 Avenue, South, Mr. Andrews being engaged in sales of wood from the lower Louisville and Nashville shop gates.

According to information received here, Messrs. J. W. Andrews and R. L. Andrews last night attended a show in a Birmingham theatre, after which they returned to the place they had parked their car, to find it missing. Investigation is declared to have revealed two negroes in the act of taking some sample cases from the machine.

The Andrews brothers pursued the blacks, overtaking William Henry Sellers, a cripple. Questioned, he opened fire and J. W. Andrews fell, mortally wounded.

R. L. Andrews, aged 18, with phenomenal courage, grappled with the black, wrenched the gun from his hand and subdued him, turning him over to police who hurried to the scene.

The body of the deceased will be brought here for interment.

The Associated Press, in a dispatch to The Daily, describes the killing as follows:

Birmingham, March 4.—J. W. Andrews, 25, of Decatur, was shot to death late last night when he and his brother came upon two negroes attempting to rob their automobile of sample cases.

He was shot down by William Henry Sellers, negro, the brother succeeding in wrenching the pistol from the hands of the negro after three shots had been fired, one of which took effect in Andrews' heart.

According to reports, the Andrews brothers had parked their car and had gone to a theatre. On returning they found their car had been moved and, hearing a noise in a nearby alley, went to investigate and found two negroes attempting to remove their sample cases.

One of the negroes fled, but Sellers, being crippled, was caught after a chase. Questioned by Andrews, Sellers whipped a pistol from his pocket and fired three shots at Andrews.

The brother, R. L. Andrews, who is 18 years old, succeeded in wrenching the pistol from the hands of the negro and held him until the arrival of police, who placed him under arrest.

Sellers implicated Doble Simpson, negro, and admitted that he fired the shots which killed Andrews. Simpson later was taken into custody and held for investigation.

Coroner J. D. Russum, who was summoned immediately, to the scene of the shooting, ordered Sellers held without bond on a charge of murder.

The Andrews brothers arrived in Birmingham late yesterday from Fort Payne, Ala., and were travelling for a toilet concern. They were staying with friends while in Birmingham.

"After coming from the show, we found our car missing," said Andrews' brother. "We heard a noise around in the alley and went to investigate and found two negroes taking our sample cases."

Andrews said that the two negroes started running and that Simpson escaped, while Sellers was overtaken by he and his brother.

Funeral services for Andrews will be held in Decatur where the body will be sent.

HARD TIMES IN "GAY PARIS"

A cable from its Paris correspondent to the theatrical weekly, Variety, says: "Montmartre cafe proprietors are worried. Business is 'way off' and many have decided to close till spring when the foreign invasion annually starts. This condition is partly due to the refusal of American tourists to play secker."

tourists have quit their riotous spending in Paris, and many have cut the poor, gay capital out of their itineraries altogether.

Hence the boulevards must be painted as "corrier, chic Parisiennes as chicker, Montmartre as more devilish. Ah—so—presto! One resorts to la photographie. The picture she must be made more to catch the eye. She must be sent in many ways to that America, to guide the footsteps of those big butter millionaires and egg magnates.

So one bit of art reflects a "beautiful-leg contest" in the Latin Quarter, in which the prize to those most prettily underpinned was "a bottle of champagne flattered through chiffon stockings." Another hint of "private bars in private homes," frequented by lass and lad alike. More still add extra allure to that wicked, wicked Montmartre.

Grand Old Lady of Georgia, At 92 Preparing State Historical Data

By International News Service

ATLANTA.—Nearing the 92nd milestone of her eventful life, Mrs. Rebecca Latimer Felton, "Grand Old Lady of Georgia" and United States senator for a day, is busier than ever, assembling and compiling a wealth of documents of historical interest which she plans to present to the University of Georgia at Athens, Ga.

front and around her home at cost of more than $1,500, she launched a vigorous protest and gave the officials a "raking over" as she terms it. The recent bank failures in Georgia and Florida brought forth a bitter statement from this woman which the newspapers printed widely. Asked frequently to comment on politics in Georgia, her reply invariably is: "Dirty and getting dirtier."

She regards Alexander Stephens as the greatest Georgian, and she "sticks" by her Bible. In the 70's she went to Washington with her husband and Uncle Joe Cannon, the speaker of the house, asked her to hear Bob Ingersoll speak on the "Mistakes of Moses." She replied:

"Joe, my religion is too precious to me and too necessary for me to take any chances with it. I am afraid to hear it lightly spoken of."

Enforcement and success of prohibition she says, "depends on the judiciary."

Only last spring, Mrs. Felton began the study of law, feeling that she must keep her mind occupied and forget the grief brought on by the death of the only surviving one of her five children. Alone she lives in her house, attended only by an occasional negro servant, but visited quite frequently by old friends and notables of a decade ago.

Mrs. Felton is and always has been a fighter. When the city of Cartersville paved the street in

LLOYD'S FUN BRIGHTENS SERIOUS SIDE OF LIFE

In "The Freshman," as in that comedy classic, "Grandma's Boy," Harold Lloyd has taken a very serious idea, and, without in the least kidding or belittling the subject, has gotten a tremendous lot of fun out of it; and, without preaching, has put over a lesson.

"The Freshman" put over the psychology of being yourself, in a story of a first-year student at college, whose sole ambition is to be the pride of his college and the idol of his fellow-students. But, instead of achieving this worthy pinnacle by himself he imitates others who have been popular. Instead of expressing his own personality, he is a reflection of everyone's pranks and tricks, because of a boobish willingness to do everything asked of him—all in the hope of becoming the prince of regular fellows!

Harold Lamb, as the character is named, is a pathetic figure, so that, even while you laugh at him you are filled with sympathy for him, and when he finally triumphs you want to join the whole college in cheering him. "The Freshman" is playing now at the Princess theatre, where it remains two days. It ranks high among the best screen comedy productions.

FILM PALACES BERLIN'S PLAN

More Than 2,000 Are Accommodated At Each Theatre

By International News Service

BERLIN.—Germany, and especially Berlin, is making a strong bid for constructing the biggest film theatres on the European continent. She is engaged in building a number of big film "palaces" with an average capacity of more than 2,500 seats.

In Berlin alone three film palaces are under construction with about 5,000 to 3,000 seats each and other German cities, like Munich, Hamburg, Leipzig, Diesseldorf are following the capital's example.

Film statistics show that the number of film theatres in Germany has decreased, but the number of seats available has steadily increased. While in 1910, the average number of seats in German film theatres was about 200, it is 360 now, which means that there are four seats available for one thousand people now, against only 21 in 1910.

In Berlin one seat is available for every twenty-fourth inhabitant.

The total of Berlin film theatres is 361, with a capacity of altogether 167,773 seats. Thirty-two of these theatres have accommodations for more than a thousand visitors, but there are still 71 theatres that cannot even place 200 visitors.

In poor quarters the oldest theatres are still being run but the new idea is that big film palaces mean better business if erected in poor quarters than in fashionable quarters. There still is too much prejudice against films generally among better class people and a play in a good theatre is preferred to film shows.

Gay Moore and Christine Noe, her cousin, are employed in the Wall Street House of Johnstone Baird, Gay as a typist and Christine as telephone operator. Christine is in love with Roger Pennington, called Penny by his intimates, and Gay is in love with Stanley Baird, Johnstone Baird's son. Gay incurs the enmity of Johnstone Baird by inadvertently opening the door of a private dining room in a roadhouse of doubtful reputation where he is dining with a woman known as the "Lilac Lady." Gay has gone there to rescue her cousin, Christine, who has gone there with Ivor Barclay in order to arouse Penny's jealousy. Stan's family disown him when he marries Gay, but they happily start housekeeping in a tiny flat, with Stan working as an automobile mechanic. Christine is discharged from her position for telling Peggy Baird, Stan's sister, that Penny is not in the office. She jealously imagines that Penny is in love with Peggy. Leaving the office she meets Penny, who gives her the key to his apartment and tells her to wait there for him. She does, so, and they plan happily to get married in the morning. Meanwhile Stan has had a proposition made to him by Mr. Brooks, the father of Mimi Brooks, whom Gay is sure is in love with Stanley. However, Stanley refuses the proposition to Gay's relief. Christine and Penny are married in City Hall and leave for a European honeymoon. Christine is wild with delight when Penny takes her to the shops in Paris.

GAY and Stan spend a happy summer in taking trips in an automobile which Stan has made from odds and ends. They call the car "Patches," and Gay forgets everything in her great happiness. She receives a note from Christine who is living in a fashionable apartment hotel, inviting Stan and her to spend the evening.

CHAPTER 38

Gay's first thought, after she and Stan had been admitted to the broad, expensive sweep of living rooms, was "How Christy has changed!"

Something sleek there was—positively sleek—about the slender girl she had known all her life and who now seemed almost a stranger.

Christine always had been beautiful; now she was stunning in her clinging black satin, dark hair shorn close in the ultra-boyish manner, her cool self-possession.

"You look exactly like a movie queen!" Gay cried, beside herself with admiration.

Christine lifted one slim shoulder in a languid shrug, draped herself under a cunningly shaded light, fitted a cigarette into a long, jade holder. Penny had been greeting Stan hilariously; now he turned quickly lighted a match for his wife, snatched up a thin, gold-cloth pillow, slipped it behind her shoulders; eyed her anxiously.

"That's service!" Stan called, twinkling at Gay over their heads. Christine shot him a sullen look and Penny reddened.

As the evening went along Gay saw the incident was characteristic of Christine's and Penny's attitude toward each other. She was like a haughty young princess, accepting favors without a word or a look of appreciation, taking his devotion as a matter of course.

"He's afraid," Gay thought, watching under her lashes. "Married only two months—and afraid she won't be pleased with him—that she will get away from him somehow. She's making him feel so purposely. How vain, she is!"

"And he's in love—oh, my yes! Whenever he looks at her his eyes go all soft and shiny. Such a nice boy; a dear boy!"

Because she longed for his old, droll smile, she made him sit beside her; asked him to tell her about the trip abroad. How was he getting on with his work, and was he going to continue with Mr. Baird? She was surprised to see a stubborn line about his mouth; a curious, baffled expression overspread his face.

Christine suddenly flung her arms around Gay. "I thought I'd be happy," she cried.

"It's my best chance—that job," he told her, rather emphatically. Everything ahead for me. No reason to leave."

"Why—certainly not. Did you think there might be?"

He glanced at Christine, lowered his voice. "Chris wants me to quit. Argued about it all the way home. Wouldn't say why, exactly. Sort of doesn't want me to work, I guess; just play golf and dance. My Lord! Sometimes I don't get her a-tall."

But Gay did. Christy, she mused, was nursing her jealousy of Peggy Baird. She wanted Pen out of the office so they'd not be likely to meet. She was willing for him to give up the work he liked so much—his claim to usefulness—to play about, be a background for her own idleness.

"But Penny," she burst out, following her own thought, "she'll learn after a little. Right now she thinks having a good time is awfully important. She'll settle down. I'm sure."

"You think she's happy, Gay? He was eager, almost pleading. 'I've let her have her way in everything else. I did want more of a home—you know, something like you and Stan have. A man needs a place like that. But she likes a home...you think she's happy?'"

She patted his hand—answered briskly because she felt like crying. "Of course she's happy! Why shouldn't she be—with you? But stand up for your rights, Pen dear. Christy's wilful; she won't care so much for you if she can impose on you."

"Well—can't say 'no' to her some-way—"

Christine rose at that moment, spilling over the floor a stack of snapshots she had been showing Stan. Penny instantly was on his feet, gathering the pictures, handing up her handkerchief which had fallen with them.

Without a glance at him his wife motioned her cousin; began to show her the apartment. They trailed through room after room; Gay's admiration finally tore away the other girl's pose of boredom and they sat down in a rose taffeta bedroom for an old-time chat.

Penny had taken her to visit his family in Philadelphia, Christine confided. Nope—she didn't like them at all. High hat. Ancient aristocracy stuff. But she showed them they couldn't get away with it—not with her. She'd been prepared all right.

"But maybe that was the reason, Christy; maybe you expected them to be superior and acted that way yourself. You can be arrogant, you know."

"I should worry. Awful row with him, you bet. Well, what did Pen do but go wild. Said I flirted."

"And did you?"

"Listen; you don't expect me to shut my eyes and wear ear-muffs because I'm married, do you? Anyway, I won't. He'll soon find it out. Can stay around where he's handy to Peggy Baird—yes, oh, yes!"

Gay started to protest, but said nothing. What use? Chris would have to learn for herself. All her life she had seemed to think the world was hers to do as she liked with. Now she was trying to bend a human destiny to her will; wrap it to suit her own ends.

She got up with a sigh. "I suppose you'll have a lot of very grand friends now. But come and see a pair of satisfied working people sometimes."

Christine suddenly flung her arms around Gay—put her head down, shaking. "I thought I'd be happy!" she wailed. "Everything—somehow—oh, I don't know—I do not know!"

Canada To Pay For Air Force

OTTAWA, Can. (INS)—Expenses of the government of Canada for the new fiscal year beginning April will be more than $6,000,000 higher than this year, Finance Minister Robb said, when he introduced the new budget in parliament.

The greatest increases were for national defense and air service. These will cost more than five million dollars more than last year.

The new Canadian embassy at Washington will cost $120,000 for the first year.

Alabama Farm Bureau Is Planning For An Extensive Campaign For Members

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Mar. 4. (AP)—Following five years of successful cooperative work the Alabama Farm Bureau federation is planning to conduct an intensive campaign for new members and for renewal of contracts with old members. Edward A. O'Neal, president of the federation has announced. At the same time Prof. L. N. Duncan, director of the Alabama Polytechnic institute's extension service, announced that his workers will continue to cooperate with the federation in its new organization work, due to the satisfactory results attained in the past with the organization's constructive program.

The Farm Bureau movement, launched in 1921, spread throughout Alabama and since that time has become a powerful agricultural force in the State, Mr. Duncan said. It has been engaged in cooperative selling of cotton, hay, and other products; and in cooperative buying of fertilizers, seed, and insecticides. At the same time it has given legislative assistance, helped with finances, and has been of service along other lines.

From the small beginning of 1921, the federation, he said, has grown until the monthly business for some years has averaged a million dollars. During the last two years declines in the price of cotton have reduced this average figure, but in spite of this loss of value, there has been a steady year to year increase in the volume of business conducted by the organization.

Defended!

After carrying her fifteen-year-old son three miles through the snow to a doctor, Mrs. Eller Barnum, of Beacon, N. Y., confessed that she had stabbed him. But while she was making her confession, he steadfastly claimed that he had accidentally cut himself, and when he was confronted by her admission, the boy insisted it was his fault because he

WHY SUFFER WITH GOITRE?

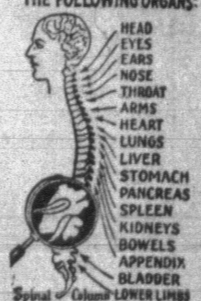

One minute essay on health by HENRY KLEIN, Chiropractor

Goitre is due to abnormal gland activity. It causes a disfiguring enlargement of the neck, and claims both men and women among its victims, but in the majority of cases women are the sufferers. No disease is more of a scourge to women because of its disfiguring possibilities.

Whether the goitre is of the watery or the fibrous type, the cause lies in the disturbed action of spinal nerve impulses due to pressure upon the nerves as they leave the spine. This pressure is removed by chiropractic spinal adjustments and, nature being given a chance, restores normal glandular action. The watery type responds more quickly to adjustments. The fibroid or hard goitre responds more slowly.

Chiropractic spinal adjustments remove the cause of diseases of the head, throat, lungs, heart, stomach, liver, kidneys, small and large intestines, and the lower organs of the body.

TODAY 12 Years Ago

From The Daily of March 4, 1915.

Colonel C. C. Harris will end his term as Eighth district congressman today and be succeeded by Judge E. B. Almon of Tusculum.

The tax rate in Morgan county will remain the same this year as it was last.

Curtis Almon has been appointed to a position in the census bureau with headquarters in New York.

Mrs. S. D. Johnson has been called to Chattanooga by the serious illness of her mother.

In the midst of the usual disappointment at the failure of congress to dispose of Muscle Shoals, Congressman Almon cannot be accused of not trying. He has offered almost every kind of plan evidently in the hope that some of them might appeal to the stubborn solons sufficiently that a real start could be made toward ultimate disposition of the government's big project.

Premier Baldwin, when he arrived at Cwm, Wales, where an explosion snuffed out the lives of many miners, was booed by the crowd. Such is human nature. The Premier had nothing whatever to do with the explosion, but the crowd, upset by grief and worry, did as crowds frequently do, took its spite out on some one. The Daily, as firm as its conviction in the fundamental justice of majority rule, realizes fully that the hasty decision of the mob is not always a just one.

If there is any truth in the theory that the March which comes in like a lion goes out like a lamb, there is compensation for the wintry blasts which gripped Decatur Tuesday and Wednesday. The spring training schedule of the Millers opens here on March 17. If there is to be any more cold weather, The Daily humbly petitions the weather man to hand it out immediately and give us spring through the remainder of March and April.

DIRECTORS WILL DECIDE FUTURE STATUS OF PLANT

On Friday a group of business men of Decatur will gather to discuss a proposition and upon their decision every resident of Morgan county has a direct or an indirect interest. This group of men will decide the future status of the canning plant here. Upon their determination will depend whether or not this progressive step toward crop diversification is to be taken at this time.

The Daily has faith that this group of men will be able to surmount the difficulties which they will face and, with grim determination, will be able to put over this proposition which means so much to this city and to the farmers of this county.

Of course, the establishment of a canning plant will not bring about any Utopian situation in Morgan county. The plant would not be able to cut a material figure in the total farm acreage in this county. It will, however, permit a number of farmers, the very first year, to grow a cash crop which will tide them over a season when finances usually are low. The assurance of a market for tomatoes or other produce contracted for, in the quantities the canning plant will be able to utilize the produce, is a guarantee to the producer that his acres will be made to return to him a cash revenue he does not now receive.

The canning plant may be viewed from a number of angles. Firstly, it will be a step in the direction of diversification. No one familiar with the conditions in this county, but who will agree that if Morgan county is to attain the degree of prosperity that it should have, diversification is necessary. Any movement, which will aid the diversification program, is certain to be of material benefit. Secondly, and from a purely selfish viewpoint, a canning plant here would be of material assistance in hastening the day when Decatur and its surrounding rural section will be working one for the other. If Decatur is to continue its expansion already started, Decatur must remember that the foundation of its growth and prosperity must be the neighboring farming sections.

Decatur has never had the amount of farm trade which its size, its facilities, its wide selection and its prices entitled it to. The reason has been that only in recent years has this city made earnest, and continuous overtures to its farm-neighbors to come here to trade and help the people already here to build a city, which, in turn, would help provide a market for the agriculturalists. The prestige which a canning plant here would give Decatur in the rural sections must not be discounted.

The curb market will open on March 5. That is a most progressive movement and one which is duly appreciated by the farmers of this county. The canning plant is another step in the path toward co-ordination of effort of town and country. In due course of time a potato house and other facilities for the farmer, no doubt, will follow. Just now the issue is—a canning plant. The curb market is here, the canning plant, by all odds, should be next. What will the answer be?

TWO BIG DEVELOPMENTS UNDERWAY: HOW ABOUT VALHERMOSO SPRINGS ALSO?

With a big-sized development underway at Monte Sano, near Huntsville, and plans being formulated for creation of a gigantic recreational and health resort at Bailey Springs, near Florence, it behooves Morgan county to give attention to the development of Valhermoso Springs, once the pride of this section, but more recently only a relic of its former glory.

The Monte Sano development already has reached an advanced stage, according to the Huntsville Daily Times, which has been a prime mover in the work. The Florence Times-News says it learns that sufficient money has passed hands as to virtually insure the carrying out of plans the promoters have for the Bailey Springs endeavor.

With all due respect to Monte Sano and Bailey Springs, The Daily does not subscribe to the belief that they have anything in the way of natural advantages over Valhermoso Springs, except possibly more accessibility.

The Daily does not believe that these resorts to the east and west of us would be in competition to the other two. The three developments would attract an immense number of people to the Tennessee Valley who might be in search of health or recreation.

The medicinal qualities of the Valhermoso water are declared to be second to none. During its early days, it attracted visitors from all over the South. These visitors went to Valhermoso despite the difficulties of travel, but frankness compels the admission also that it was no more difficult, probably, to reach Valhermoso than it was to go to any of the numerous other resorts of somewhat similar type.

When railroads were built and road conditions improved in other sections, the consequence was felt at Valhermoso and the number of visitors dropped off. Many of those who ordinarily would have selected Valhermoso chose other resorts which could be reached with less difficulty.

The opening of the proposed east-road from here will give Valhermoso a good highway outlet, the opening of the Whitesburg bridge will be another aid to the development of that splendid section of Morgan and Marshall counties.

While the people of Decatur and Morgan county are rejoicing with the people of Madison and Lauderdale counties on the progress being made in the development of Monte Sano and Bailey Springs, let them not overlook the fact that almost at their back door they have another resort possibility of almost boundless limit. Let us not forget Valhermoso.

RECORD OF NO-BLOODSHED IS ONE TO BE PROUD OF THESE DAYS

The record of the retiring sheriff of Etowah county of spilling no blood during his tenure of office has attracted much attention. It might be said in passing here, that Sheriff Ernest Poole and his deputies also retired from office with a similar record.

It does not speak well for society that the retirement of an official from office, without having committed violence during his term either in subjugation of recalcitrant prisoners or protection of himself should be so uncommon that it would attract attention, yet of the Etowah record, the Florence Times-News says:

The Gadsden Times quotes the retiring sheriff of Etowah county as remarking at the time that he surrendered his office "at any rate, no one has been killed by my force during my administration," which The Times declares is significant, and in which comment right thinking people will heartily agree, and also in the further comments of that newspaper on the fact that so many persons are "authorized to carry guns who have no earthly business with them," making the basis whereby sometimes unjustifiable killings occur at the hands of officers who perhaps are not temperamentally qualified for the positions they hold. The simply made statement of the Etowah sheriff carries with it more than the mere words express. It creates the impression that he surrounded himself with deputies who were men of judgment and calmness, able to discharge the duties of the office without excitement or the fear which makes a man too ready with a gun, and also that the sheriff realized that he was elected to serve the welfare of the people and not chosen as the little temporary ruler of the people of the county who must abide by his orders or suffer the consequences, as appears to be the idea of some men about offices of this kind. Fortunately there are a fair proportion of officers of the calibre of the Etowah sheriff, and it might be added, they are more frequently the rule than the exception in this part of the state.

There is a great quantity of wholesome truth crammed into the few paragraphs of the Times-News editorial. The condition of the public mind today is not conducive to such records as were made in Morgan and Etowah. What with liquor wars, bank robbers, highwaymen, murderers and the laxity in respect for law and order, a sheriff whose force escapes during four years without either having shed any blood or sacrificed any of their own is, indeed, a fit subject for congratulation.

Not in all instances are the officers to blame for killings occurring in the discharge of the duties. The largest percentage by far result from the attitude of modern criminals, whose desperate spirit, if not courage, makes them kill rather than be taken. Officials are the victims of the modern view which holds life much too cheaply. Officers who are sometimes pictured as swash-buckling blusterers going about with pistols in hand, seeking whom they may devour, more often than not are victims, rather than originators of the custom of shooting first and asking questions afterward.

The retention of Colonel Hartley Moon as assistant adjutant general will cause widespread satisfaction in Alabama. Under the leadership of Colonel Moon, the Alabama military department has been kept at a high state of efficiency.

The general public may not be aware of the fact, but those who have been in close touch with the situation realize the deep interest of Morgan county farmers in the curb market and the canning factory. The farmers of this county are depending upon Decatur to help them through this approaching season and Decatur has a rare opportunity for constructive service to the agricultural classes this year.

A local minister, visiting in The Daily office, asked about the absence of "Mazie," one of the comics which became lost in the mails recently. This brought up the general subject of comics. He has become a convert to them only recently, he said, but strange to relate, the "preachy" kind he did not like so well as he did those which made no pretense to point morals. "I want my preaching from the pulpit and my fun in the funny papers," he explained.

SOME INTERESTING NAMES OF PLACES IN ALABAMA TO VISIT

As spring approaches and the citizens fare forth in their fire wagons for to see and learn, they are some communities in Alabama not generally known, which might afford some interest upon occasion of a visit. They have been noted in going through the state exchanges, and are given herewith for the education of Alabamians who probably did not know such places existed.

There is a settlement called "Cowpen," as shown by The Alexander City Outlook; "Pinhook," in Cleburne county; "Frog Pond," as noted by The Marion County News; "Scatter" is in Blount, according to The Southern Democrat, and the Guntersville Advertiser chronicles the doings at "Honeycomb."

"Cumbud" is in Fayette county; and The Collinsville Courier records the thrills of "Skirum." The Roanoke Leader tells of the doings at "Bacon Level," while The Cleburne News saves time, type and ink on the heading about doings at "Ai." The shortest name in the state, Calhoun county comes to bat with "Rabbitown" and "Angel." Cleburne again is in the limelight with "Pilgrim Rest." Choctaw county is famous for "Romjohn." Blount makes another bid for fame on "Goosepad," near Brooksville, and "Blowground," near Cleveland.

"Screamer" confers distinction upon Henry county; while in The Wetumpka Herald a palpitating public is informed of what is happening at "Flea Hop." The Coosa River News tells of "Frog Creek" doings and The Evergreen Courier about "Sweet Violet" and its people. The batrachians are rather favorites in Alabama, for The Franklin Times, of Winston county, records, "Frog Pond Personals." The Wiregrass Farmer, of Headland, has the "Tumbleton."

Reading for tonight: 1 Thessalonians 2:1-12: "The Minister's Spirit."

"Working night and day," Paul was not anxious to be known as an eloquent speaker, or a social favorite. He was in "the business of religion," and he devoted himself to it night and day. It was often difficult to do his duty, Christians then were as apt to leave the right path as they are now. They needed to be warned and admonished. Plattery was often more welcome than truth. But Paul kept in mind his responsibility to the Lord for the care of the souls entrusted to him, and he preached as the Spirit of God led him. He took special care to give no occasion for complaint concerning his own life, that his practice should measure up to his preaching. And his arduous program of service and instruction, for example—brought large results. So it will bring them whenever a Christian—minister or layman—gives himself unreservedly to the Lord's cause.

News," while The Heflin News, of Cleburne county, tells of what is happening in "Trickem." The Clayton Record, a news item from "Pimple Hill," and "Schuffie Grit," makes its bow to fame in Marion county. The frogs are again celebrated, for The Clanton Union Banner, of Chilton county, tells of an arrest at "Frog Level." There is a "Pin Hook" up near Moulton also according to The Advertiser, and The "Burnt Corn" in Monroe. And The Cullman Tribune has some correspondence from "Needmore."

Some of the Indian names are interesting also—Weogfuka, in Coosa county, while The Roanoke Leader comes to bat with items from Wedowee and Weradkee. Probably these are not all the interesting names of communities and settlements in Alabama, but these are the ones gleaned from a reading of state papers. They may not be all postoffices, but they are bona fide names of bona fide communities. What's in a name, anyway? — Birmingham News.

While "Get Up," "Ditto" and other big "strutters" in this neck of the woods join with the full greetings of the season.—Huntsville Daily Times.

A GOOD PIECE OF WORK
 The work of the Florence Chamber of Commerce and the Florence Real Estate Board in getting together and putting over a local industry to the tune of $100,000 is evidence of a splendid degree of cooperation on the part of the citizens of that city and leaders deserve praise for their success in handling a proposition that seemed at one time as if it would be lost completely.

The Tri-Cities Daily congratulates Florence on securing this new addition and also the individuals and the organizations responsible for putting the proposition over. We wish them all success.—Tri-Cities Daily.

DRUG ADDICTION SURE TO BRING TORTURE
Victims Lose Sense of Honor and Resort to All Sorts of Tricks to Get Supply of Soul-Destroying Stuff.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
 United States Senator from New York.
 Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

AMONG the sad letters I receive are those coming from the friends and relatives of drug addicts. It so happens that I have had rather an unusual experience with sufferers of this sort.

For this reason my heart goes out to those who are touched by the blighting hand of drug addiction.

The papers were filled a little while ago with a new cure applied to the inmates of a prison in an Eastern city. Conflicting accounts were printed regarding the effects of this alleged cure. The stories have resulted in a renewed discussion of a question which now and then comes to the front.

So far as suffering goes I would rather have almost any disease than to endure the agonies associated with the taking of drugs. The victim of this addiction is never comfortable, in mind certainly, except when he is under the poisonous influence of the narcotic.

The victim of any narcotic drug loses his normal stamina. He cannot bear the slightest discomfort, twinge of pain or even the changes of weather. The minute the slightest symptom of physical suffering comes there comes further undermining of the physical and moral strength. It is not long before the victim is the abject slave of the drug.

When we come to the question of cure we are dealing with an entirely different condition from the treatment of a disease. We are not dealing with a self-limited condition; we are not dealing with something having a natural tendency toward improvement. On the contrary, we cannot hope to have the assistance of Mother Nature who is so kind to us in most of our illnesses. The forces within us which make for recovery from disease have been poisoned and paralyzed by these dreadful drugs. I was not much impressed by the terrible tales of suffering which were spread abroad by the persons who took the treatment in the aforementioned institution. It makes no difference where the treatment is given; by whom it is given or what it is, the weakened body and more weakened brain and nervous system of the drug addict will make him complain bitterly of the most luminous attempt at a cure.

In order to get the drug the addict will resort to any trick of woe, exaggeration of fact, or utter dishonesty. He will tell the truth about everything else, but to get more morphine or heroin he will perjure his soul. A story of human suffering he knows to be the quick way to get more dope.

His is one human affliction which cannot be overcome by medication alone. Unless the victim of drug addiction affects a moral regeneration he has little chance of permanent cure. There is no trouble to take the patient off the drug—that can be accomplished in a couple of weeks—but, without a moral regeneration sufficient to stimulate the will-power disaster is just ahead.

The first time that human suffering or social disturbance occurs there will be a return to the drug. I can give this word of cheer—with proper custodial care over a period of a few weeks and physical rebuilding afterward, together with permanent change of environment and association, and awakened sense of responsibility, will come a complete cure.

In offering Mr. Brisbane's daily editorials The Daily does not necessarily concur with his opinions, but offers them as the sentiments of the highest paid editorial writer in this country.

SAN FRANCISCO, Mar. 4.—This is written in San Francisco, old, solid business city of the Pacific Coast. Here you are in a city long established, with its past, full of memories, romance, adventure, its energetic present built upon homogeneous long established population.

THE future of this city, as of other American cities, on the Pacific ocean is without limit. The gigantic state of California, with 5,000,000 population today, with stined to have fifty millions of population, with room, prosperity and happiness for all.

SAN FRANCISCO is the western centre of finance and foreign trade. And its industries including those spreading into the suburbs, and rapidly developing in the great city of Oakland across the bay, increase with amazing rapidity.

BUSINESS men everywhere, asking "what do you think of business conditions," would have been interested in the talk at a luncheon given by Herbert Fleishacker. He had gathered men that know business conditions, from Mexico to Alaska.

Mr. Pillsbury, president of the Telephone company, is in constant touch with business and workers. Mr. Kingsbury, president of the Standard Oil company, knows of conditions and prosperity reflected in the purchase of gasoline. Mr. Shoup, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, sees prosperity reflected in railroads travel and shipments. Everything that these and other business men had to say, based on actual knowledge would encourage all business men, manufacturers and workers.

BRET HARTE, who called San Francisco "serene, indifferent of fate" would not represent San Francisco today.

This is a city of intensive hard workers, close calculations, experienced financiers. And this California section, with its magnificent harbor, second to none in the world, its great bay, with room for many cities, its unlimited sources of wealth, agricultural, mineral and industrial, east, north and south, is destined to be in future history a world centre.

In ancient days of Athens, Rome and Constantinople, the little Mediterranean was then "the Great Sea." The Atlantic came next, with the great cities and nations. The maximum is reached now, and the Pacific is "the Great Sea." Along this coast, will develop cities greater than any the world has known. This Pacific gate, with its magnificent high hills for dwellings, its smooth land-locked waters, will grow into a city or group of cities compared with which the New York of today would seem unimportant.

NEW YORK will not believe that, The Greeks when they planted their settlements at the foot of the Italian peninsula would not have believed that nations greater than Greece cities greater than Athens, would be built by "Barbarians," out beyond the gates of Hercules, on the troubled Atlantic.

IT IS hard for the east to believe that this western country is the real America, that the Pacific is the real ocean, that this American Pacific coast line is the real front door of the United States. But this is the real America and the front door of the United States.

THE citizens of San Francisco would like you to know that their city stands highest in wealth, per capita, of any big city in the United States.

Of the hundred biggest banks in the nation, San Francisco has nine including the third largest in America, the Bank of Italy started by Mr. Giannini, an Italian. That may interest the Nordic enthusiasts.

Bank clearings of San Francisco in 1926 were nearly ten billion dollars, a gain of forty per cent in five years.

But all statistics of today are unimportant as compared with the most moderate estimate of the future, of this city, of Oakland across the bay, and of this whole Pacific coast.

THIS part of America could feed the world with its present population. Unlimited water power resources, and the new electric process of steel making, combined with ideal climate, and living conditions, including low cost of living will make the coast the greatest American centre of population.

TO SEE the United States, you must see the front door, the Pacific coast. Don't, when you face the heavenly hosts, be obliged to confess that you never crossed this continent or saw the Rockies or the big ocean in which all the lands of earth could be hidden away. Come by rail, any one of six great railroads will bring you from Chicago here in 63 hours.

GO BACK BY BOAT, through the Panama Canal. And you will at least have crossed your country and sailed part way around it. Or get into your car, buy one, if you haven't one, and travel here at your leisure. If not in a hurry, that is the way to come.

TO THINK your way through a book, and motor your way through a country, is the right proceeding.

Before long you will fly from ocean to ocean and from city to city. But don't wait for that. See this country now, and don't miss this part of it.

TOKIO.—To be an ideal husband in Japan a man must be handsome and distinguished looking, optimistic and somewhat sentimental, capable of a love that is "pure, rational and permanent," have a sense of humor, be about 30 years old and have an income of from $35.00 to $150.00 per month.

To be an ideal wife in Japan a woman must be, pretty, plump, healthy, intelligent, warmhearted, spirited but not "bossy," capable of enduring affection, about 20 years old and never, under any circumstances, fat.

There are other requirements for both sexes, of course, and individual opinions, tastes and desires differ. But the specifications listed above approximate the standard of the average young man and young woman of Japan today, according to a symposium obtained by Sujokai, or "Women's World," a magazine published in Tokio.

A large number of young women, from families of all classes, some of them wage earners, were asked to state what kind of a husband they would prefer. A similar number of young men, employed in banks, offices, stores, and including a few university students, actors and artists, were quizzed as to their preferences in wives.

The symposium brought forth an interesting difference of opinion as between the men and the girls themselves, regarding the ancient Japanese custom of marrying the man or woman that the parents select.

Most of the young men thought it was a pretty good idea to have wise and experienced parents select a bride for them, although they did not hesitate to say that kind of a bride they hoped the parents would pick. Those young men who live at home and are constantly under the influence of the family circle also thought there was some merit in the old custom of marrying the family choice. But those young women who are earning their living by work in store or offices expressed a marked preference for the so-called free marriage where love rules supreme.

Trace of the vampire in the bride is not too objectionable, several of the young men declared so long as she is not hysterical or lazy.

On the question of love the young men declared, generally that they wanted to love their wives wholeheartedly and expect an equal degree of affection in return.

Rat poison has become the favorite suicide medium of the Japanese, according to police statistics. During 1926, there were 1,275 persons who committed suicide in Tokio and 402 ended their life by swallowing "negorizau," or rat poison. Of the remainder, 28 hanged themselves; 216 died by drowning and the others jumped in front of street cars or automobiles or shot themselves. They were 186 murders in Tokio during the year.

BIRTHDAY DINNER FOR REV. BRIDWELL.

Upon returning from the home of his daughter, Rev. A. Q. Bridwell, accompanied by his family, was delightfully surprised to find fifty-two guests gathered at his home to help him celebrate his birthday on Thursday evening.

The guests had come laden with baskets and boxes filled with refreshments and laden with gifts for Rev. Bridwell. Two tables had been prettily decorated and arranged for serving them and one was centered with a huge birthday cake on which burned fifty-two candles. The guest of honor was requested to blow out the candles which he did. He then gave a short talk expressing appreciation of the thoughtfulness of his friends and ended by saying that "Fifty-two years ago today I cried, 30 years ago I was converted and took up the ministry and twenty years ago I was happily married and this is another red letter day in my life and it will always be pleasantly remembered."

Advance Ideas for the Bride-to-Be

A Smart Wedding Gown and a Lovely Sports Frock.

By Annette Bradshaw.

THE girl who is planning a Spring or early Summer wedding is sure to be thinking of bride's frocks and trousseau. Hence it is not at all too early to show designs that may be of interest to the bride-to-be.

A lovely wedding gown is shown here, one of French inspiration, which is charming in its youthful simplicity. Ivory white satin, so soft that it is like the finest crepe de Chine, is the material used, with bunches of orange blossoms for the very youthful tulle train. The bride who prefers frills might have the gown copied in the finest of crepe Elizabeth or crepe roma, for either of those materials would lend itself beautifully to the soft draped treatment.

The veil arrangement would be equally becoming with long or short hair, for the short-haired person especially is most likely to need a rather fitted veil arrangement for the head.

A simply designed sports frock, in the same feeling which inspired the smartly youthful bride's frock, is shown in the other drawing. When the reader knows that this is done in white tulle with embroidered designs in orange and yellow, no further elaboration will be necessary.

A copy of the dress might be made in white linen with a hand-blocked design done in gay colors, preferably with the motifs rather widely scattered, as in the frock shown here. Fine voile also lends itself rather well to this straight treatment, and white voile often comes embroidered in the loveliest of colors.

in Moulton Heights on Tuesday night.

Those enjoying the evening's entertainment with her were Misses Maureen and Corine Cagle, Dominic Mae, Irene and Ruby Callahan, Lena, Bernice and Gladys Cole, Flossie Crowell, and Elizabeth Johnson. Messrs. Jim Robinson, Tennis Royer, Grady Hanks, Lee and Neil Cagle, Jewel Harville, Murphy Woodruff, Claude Vaughn, Tom Hill, Wallace Alexander, Dewey Wilson, Elmcand Herbert Norwom and J. T. PARIS.—Raincoats used to be remarkable mainly for their usefulness and they still are that. But it is for their beauty that one notices them especially these days.

A few years ago one thought rainy-day garments had to be drab and dull-colored and of course they were bulky because of awkward cut and materials. Fashion experts who are turning their attention to every little detail which regards woman, are now showing that raincoats can be perfectly waterproof and very smart as well.

Instead of the old-fashioned classical materials, like covercoat and gabardine, satin crepe de Chine, drap de soie and velvet are being rubberized and so well done that one can scarcely believe his eyes. For the materials remain as soft and supple as before the process and colors are quite delightful, such as bois-de-rose, soft wine-red, bright scarlet, white, acid-green and powder-blue, to gether with a few of the popular shades.

"L'Habit Vert" is in white velvet with wide lapels and belt of bright green and is so smart one can wear it any day the sun shines as well as when the rain pours.

"Zig Zag" comes in wine-red crepe de Chine with a wide, full-length lapel trimmed with applique bands of velvet.

One dressmaker is showing a number of raincoats of crepe de Chine with a narrow belt, in the back and double-breasted front. They come in pale pink, mauve, green and pale blue. One in blue comes with a cape at the back and is lined in white.

"Perle Fine" is in white rubberized drape de soie trimmed with deep blue narrow bands of crepe de Chine. One need not tell anyone it is a raincoat and no one will ever guess it. A more classical type comes in royal blue cashmere piped in bright red and lined with red.

Bernard is showing very practical little waterproofs which are very silky looking and fold up into little cases which serve as pillows when travelling.

PARIS.—The single jewel is one of the smartest springtime fancies, judging from the chic collections now passing at the French dress-makers. The beauty of wearing but one lovely jewel or ornament on a lovely frock is being illustrated in all manner of ways. And if one has no handsome "collier" of fine pearls, one wears a beautiful clear stone hung on a slender chain of ribbon.

One designer is making a simple frock of blue crepe satin with a narrow belt tied at the side of the skirt and a knot on the shoulder secured by a barrette of four large rose corals, the only ornament on the frock. Another has the apron front fastened at the side with a similar barpin in exquisite pearls.

Three buckles around the beltline, of fine pearls and amethysts are put on a charming frock of violet Sokol crepe. Two in emeralds close the collar and belt of a black crepe de Chine made with bias folds on the skirt, and a buckle of pearls and onyx is found on a black moire belt worn with a dark red crepe de Chine frock.

PARIS.—A few French hints to make cooking better and better. "Why do souffles remain as flat as a pancake? Because the whites of the eggs are not beaten firmly enough and the oven is too hot. The oven must be only moderate and the baking slow."

Why are there lumps in your frying batter? Because you do not use flour in cold water or milk, adding it drop by drop.

Why do meats remain white? Because they are browned in a closed casserole. All meat cooked in this manner will not have a good color.

If you have difficulty removing the skins from chestnuts its because you have not made an incision around them before putting them into boiling water.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE: I am a girl in my teens and engaged to a young man two years my senior.

He is very jealous. Please tell me how to break him of his jealousy.

BIG BLUE EYES: You must first determine whether you have given your fiancé any cause for jealousy. If you are certain that his uneasiness is not well founded, I would suggest that you have a frank talk with him. Point out that an been the cause of marital disaster. I am sure if you make it quite clear that happiness for you both lies in complete faith in each other, he will make a very strong effort to overcome his jealousy. Tell him that it would be unwise to marry until he is completely assured of affection and devotion.

By adding new lines of work and increasing in efficiency the extension service staff rendered more service in 1926 than in 1925 which had already established a new high mark in extension work for Alabama, he said. A study of reports of county demonstration agents showed that each county agent averaged serving regularly one more community and 62 more farms in 1926 than in 1925. Mr. Duncan said.

There was an increase of 37 meetings held per county agent; personal calls increased 18; telephone calls increased 104; and individual letters amounted by 50, the report showed.

During 1926 the average county agent in Alabama carried on a program in 14 communities, covering most of his county. He held 186 meetings, received 1,265 farmer calls, answered 537 telephone calls, wrote 1,266 letters, distributed literature and worked in co-operation with groups of business men and farm organizations.

The lines of service given during the year included all important problems confronting the farmer and his family, said Mr. Duncan. Soil, crops, orchards, gardens, livestock, poultry, homes, flowers, insects and diseases of plants and livestock were included in the field of service covered by the extension workers.

gold" to beckon seekers of riches, yellow gold now lures an eager, varied throng to the hills of the Indians.

A. Bahl is the prospector credited with the discovery. Formerly a railway roadmaster, he dreamed of gold winding through the hills on trains.

"There is gold in those hills," he once remarked. "Gold and minerals worth far more than any Oklahoma oil pool hidden there."

Two years ago he disappeared into the hills and began to dig. A few days ago he emerged.

"There is gold out there and I have found it," he announced. He carried specimens of earth and rock, in which he said were not only gold, but iron, soda and aluminum as well.

Government assay reports, exhibited by Bahl a few days later, showed gold ranging from $50 to $1,000 for each ton of earth in his shaft. He claims his holdings will produce as high as $2,000 a ton.

Policeman Dies Death of Hero

NEW YORK, Mar. 4.—(AP)—A traffic policeman, who plunged into a five-story burning tenement to rescue screaming children, died a victim to the flames in a Spring street building today, beside the body of an aged man he had attempted to drag for safety.

The policeman rushed up the flaming staircase and helped several tenants to fire escapes before the fireman arrived.

The bluecoat, identified by his partly melted badge, as Harry J. Farrell, was found near the foot of the stairway leading to the roof.

Agricultural Products Nearing Basis of Import, Says Report

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Mar. 4. (AP)—Certain agricultural products which formerly were exported in large quantities from the United States are now fluctuating in a narrow margin between an export and import basis. Among them are corn, dairy products, beef and spring wheat.

This is noted by the United States Department of Agriculture, which says that commodities that are shifting from an export basis to an import basis are subject to great fluctuations in price. In one year their production may be a little less than domestic consumption. In that case the home demand alone determines the price. In another year, when the production of these commodities slightly exceeds domestic requirements, they become subject to world price conditions.

There is constant shifting in the relationship of the United States to world production and foreign markets, the department says. Our agricultural export surplus declined for several years before the war. Foreign demand in the war period revived our exports, but since the war the pre-war declining tendency has been resumed to a considerable extent. Nevertheless, some classes of wheat, as well as pork, tobacco and cotton, seem likely to continue on an export basis, perhaps even more definitely than before the war. Exports of apples and prunes are increasing, and oranges and rice have shifted from an import to an export basis.

"These changes do not lessen the pressure of foreign competition on American agriculture," the department says. "It might be supposed that increasing industrialization of the United States, with its assurance of a greater market for the home producer, would mean easier going for him, but there is another side to the story. The industrial population of the United States increases faster than the production of some farm commodities. This makes imports necessary, so that the home producer is affected by foreign competition and by price variation due to changes in world production just as he was when his crop was on an export basis.

Foreign competition, the department says, is increasing in many lines. Production in the tropics of certain vegetable oil which we do not produce is increasing, and competes everywhere with American lard, butter and cotton seed oil. Moreover, Europe, outside of Russia, has nearly recovered its prewar volume of agricultural production. Canada, Argentina, New England and Australia are increasing their production of the same commodities that we produce and Russia is making progress in agricultural recovery.

"There is consequently no escape from foreign competition, and the problem is now best to meet it. In the case of commodities the production of which is increasing more rapidly than the home demand, the thing to do is to find

Wild Game Drifts Back To Scenes Of Forest Fires And Destruction

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Mar. 4. (AP)—The instinct of wild game to drift back to their ranges following forest fires often leads to their destruction, evidence gathered by foresters of the United States Department of Agriculture shows.

While a forest fire, unless it is "crowning," or traveling in the tree tops, ordinarily does not travel fast enough to overtake the fleeing game birds and animals, the homing instinct is said to bring them back to their haunts frequently before a fire has subsided. Commenting on the destruction of wild life by forest fires, J. W. Humphrey of the Forest Service, describes some of his observations during the Lost Johnny Creek fire in the Flathead National Forest in Montana last summer.

"The fire while at its height," he said, "did not travel faster than two miles an hour, and it would seem unlikely that deer or game birds would be overtaken by the flames. Pine squirrels and other animals, however, were all destroyed. Along the edge of the fire we saw a number of pine squirrels with their feet so badly burned they could not climb trees. I found two whitetail deer burned to a crisp. We found a great many grouse that had died from the effects of the fire.

"The fire did not travel fast enough to overtake either the game or the birds. In my opinion, the game, after the fire had quieted down, drifted back through the smoldering ashes. After getting in where the ashes were extremely hot, and burning their feet, they became bewildered, and probably

RECORD WHEAT IS IN SIGHT IN WEST

Areas Look Forward To Giant Yield For the Year

TOPEKA, Kan. (INS)—The southwest wheat belt will harvest another record wheat crop this year, according to present prospects.

Extensive wheat growers and elevator men are sending reports into the capital which indicate that all western Kansas, with the possible exception of a half dozen counties in the extreme northwest section, will break the record of last year.

The same optimistic condition of greening wheat fields appears over the entire southwest belt, including western Oklahoma and the Panhandle of Texas. Recent weather conditions have been pronounced ideal in most sections, and reports show that a large acreage was planted all over the belt.

No evidence that the Hessian fly or any other pest was threatening damage to the new crop was found by growers and elevator men who have been visiting the fields recently.

Alexander P. Moore, former Ambassador to Spain, refused the post of censor of New York theatres.
